THE LITERATI BALL

VOL. 3 JANUARY 17, 1931 NO. 1

LITERARY LIONS GAMBOL TONITE

Crooning Compositors Alias Black Panthers In Melodious Mood

Selected syncopation will be systematically sounded throughout the evening by those mournful musicians and tricky tunesters, the Crooning Compositors, (alias tbe Black Pantbers). Or rather we sbould say these melodious masters will perpetrate tbeir outrages if tbe audience doesn't prevent—(here's hoping—say, can't you take a hint?).

This blatant band has a remarkable record, baving provided mad merriment for social splurges from Rutland to Ripton, from Hinesburg to Hamburg. Tbe last time they assumed tbe role of sonorous sound-sponsors, the function had to be quickly culminated after the first hectic balf-hour, for like the music of Orpbeus, their sublime songs attracted all the people in the country. If we're all bere, let's go.

Publication Heads Convene to Enjoy Year's First Formal

The Literati Ball whicb will be held at tbe Middlebury Inn this evening, (barring accident), is the tbird annual affair of its kind, (and what a kind!).

Oldest inhabitants bave assured us tbat in pioneer days before the advent of trutb, knowledge, and Pi Delta Epsilon, all the publications elected representatives to a general committee which perpetrated the ball. But eacb publication insisted upon assuming tbe lion's share of tbe profits (or losses; history doesn't say which), and so Pbi Pi Epsilon stepped in and graciously agreed to boss tbe affair.

In order to get into tbe ball, one must be publisber of something or other, or tried to be, or intended to be. This restriction was first imposed last year, with the result that so many people tried out for the CAMPUS that it had to move its meetings to a bigger room, and the editors could not find enough assignments to go around.

To relieve matters, the KALEIDOSCOPE kindly accepted about sixty of the try-outs, and then some public spirited collegians started a racket known as the press cluh. Now the puhlications are ahle to accommodate as try-outs the entire college, except for the assistant stoker at the heating plant, and the dish-washer at the dog cart. And just look at the literati ball as a result!

Some canine competition is expected this evening. Enough dogs in chapel last week to make up a full house, acoording to latest statistics. Perhaps they may favor us with their attention tonight. Then the committee would go doggo, eh?
